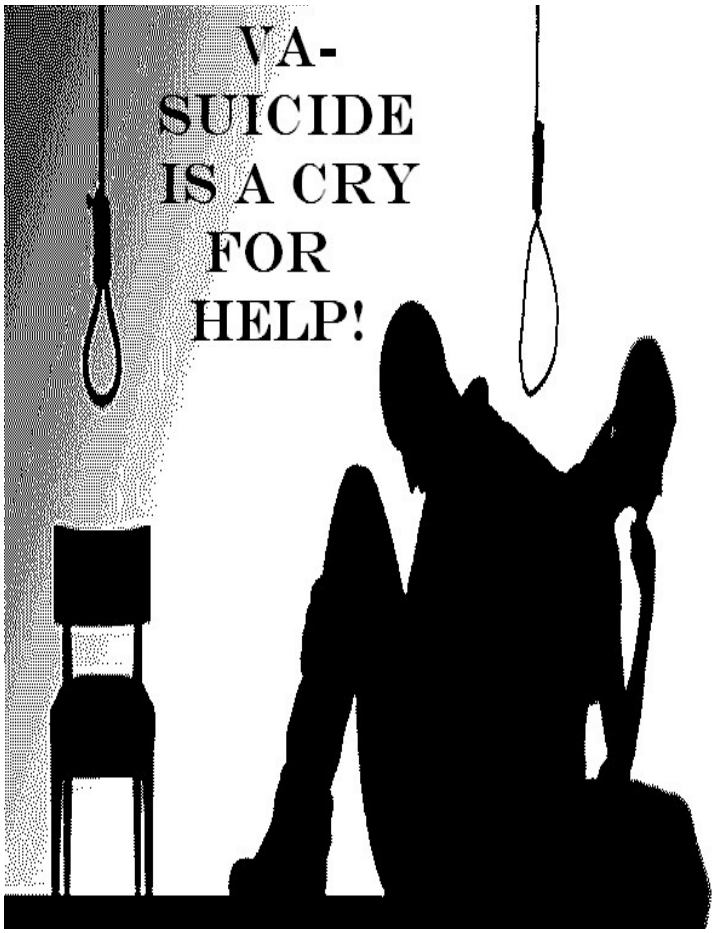
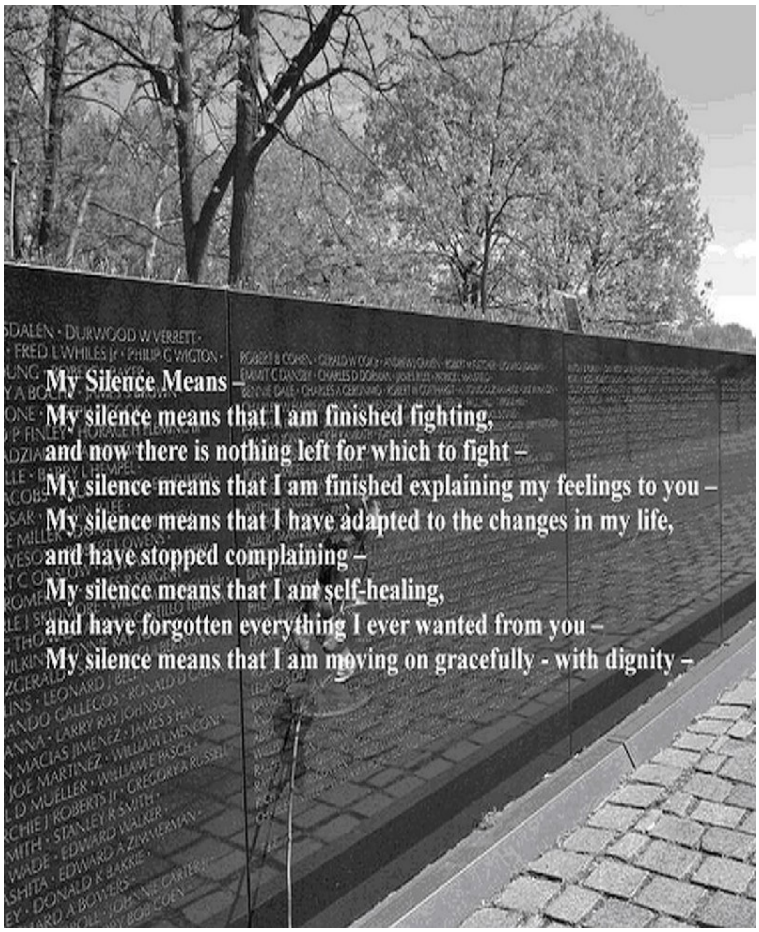
THE SNAKE

A woman driving late at night on a country road accidentally ran over a copperhead snake lying on the warm pavement. Alarmed she stopped and got out of her car to investigate. The badly hurt snake was barely alive. Being a card carrying ASPCA member, she scooped up the injured animal, placed it into a shoe box and drove home. For weeks the woman cared for the injured serpent until once again it was healthy. At next feeding when she placed her hand into the box, the viper repeatedly bit her. As she died, her last words were, I helped you to survive, heal and live; this is how you repay me!!! The serpent replied, 'Lady, you knew I was a snake before ever bringing me home." Now to veterans that still do not get the meaning of this whole diatribe: when VA finally gets around to biting you, you knew VA was a snake before ever walking into their clinics, hospitals or benefits system. A snake's nature is to bite; the human quality is beware that or suffer and die. It only takes one bite to send your body to the basement morgue wearing only a toe tag. Be sure to leave a valid phone number so someone can call your spouse or mama to claim the remains. Beware – you have been forewarned.





My Silence Means –
My silence means that I am finished fighting, and now there is nothing left for which to fight –
My silence means that I am finished explaining my feelings to you –
My silence means that I have adapted to the changes in my life, and have stopped complaining –
My silence means that I am self-healing, and have forgotten everything I ever wanted from you –
My silence means that I am moving on gracefully - with dignity –
